consider smaller, more curated

Why

The new realities of Health and Safety will necessitate smaller attendance. To avoid crowding, attendees will be managed as timed groups. So, why not organize them by interests or networks ("Learning Paths") and direct them to attend different parts of the event in staggered sections?

Benefit

Consider the attendees. For them, this not only means more breathing room, but potentially a better-quality event—with more time and space to connect with others and engage with the experience around them.
